

Feminist Theory

Preliminaries

1. Logistics I would like you to write six essays of around 1,600-2,000 words each for me across the term. It is up to you in which weeks you write these essays. For each topic I have suggested an essay question. It is up to you whether you answer this question or come up with your own. In weeks when you do write an essay, please email it to me by 19.00 the day before our tutorial to give me a chance to read through it before we meet. When emailing me your essay, I would appreciate it if you could include both your name and the essay topic in the name of the document. In the two weeks in which you do not write an essay, you should still aim to do the reading for that week's topic. If for any reason (illness, a pileup of other commitments, etc.) writing an essay proves to be difficult in a week when an essay is due, do not worry: just email me and we can sort something out (e.g. writing the essay in week 9, or whatever works best).

2. Topics We will begin by looking at standpoint epistemology in week 1. After that you can choose which topics we look at each week from those remaining on the list.

3. Reading (i) Order I recommend reading the texts listed for each topic in roughly the order I have listed them. (ii) Quantity I do not expect you to get through all the texts listed for a given topic during the given week in term time, but you should aim to get through at least half. (iii) Note-taking It is important that as you read you take high-quality notes from which you will later be able to revise. You will be better-off in the long-run reading fewer texts while taking high-quality notes than reading more texts without taking high-quality notes. (iv) Revising At the end of term you should decide which four topics you will prepare to answer on in Finals, and use the vacation to get through any remaining texts listed for those topics. You should also make sure to consult the faculty reading list for those topics prior to Finals.

4. Writing I strongly recommend reading Rachel Fraser's "Essay Writing Instructions" and "What Not to Do" before writing your first essay, available here: <https://drive.google.com/drive/folders/1V-fuU89qX-IZAXVu3V3zWS1dQNz0bjQd>.
